Last night, Leah and her family went to Tony's Real Scoop for the first time. Usually they go to Gino's Ice Cream because it is much closer to their house. It had thirty-two flavors instead of just twelve. It even had homemade waffle cones, which Gino's never had. Question

Teepees and igloos were types of homes that the Native people of North America lived in. The Plains people built teepees. Teepees were cone-shaped and were made of buffalo hide and wooden poles. The Inuit built igloos. Igloos were dome-shaped and were made from blocks of snow and ice stacked on top of each other. Like teepees, igloos were temporary homes, meaning that they weren't built to last forever. Both teepees and igloos were usually built for a single family and had one main room where the entire family lived.
